

Frankfurt International Airport is approximately 1 hour's drive away. Trains connect directly to Heidelberg's main station or via Mannheim's main station (see "by train" for more information). From Heidelberg station, a taxi will take you to Cellzome within 10 minutes. You could also get a Lufthansa shuttle bus that leaves every hour from Terminal B and takes you directly to the Crowne Plaza Hotel in Heidelberg, from where you can catch a taxi to the EMBL. One can also arrange a limousine service taking you directly from the airport to Cellzome. Please contact: "Woerns Limousine Service" +49 6227 3589 222

By train

Heidelberg's main railway station operates fast train connections to all major European cities, mostly via Mannheim. Find more information on schedules here.

By car

Heidelberg is situated directly on the A5 North-South motorway connecting Frankfurt (in the north) and Basel (in the south). We suggest leaving the motorway at the exit "Heidelberg/Schwetzingen" and head for "Heidelberg". After approx. 1 km turn right towards "Leimen". Passing Leimen, this road will lead you towards the Heidelberg suburb "Boxberg". Here you find a blue petrol station ("ARAL"), where you turn left and drive through "Boxberg" until the "EMBL Boxbergring guesthouse" that appears on your left. Here the road splits and you should go left taking you downhill. After yet another 200 meters, a road sign shows "EMBL" to the right. After approx. 200 meters, turn left and park in the large 3-storey car park. There is a footpath then up to the Cellzome building.
